May Program– Panoramas – Photoshop & More by Garth Fraser

I am a self taught photographer with a degree in mechanical engineering, and yet my first love was photography. I have been shooting since I was fourteen, starting with the hardest film of the time, Kodachrome II. I have since gravitated to digital cameras, finding the control found within the digital workflow to be intoxicating. I still, from time to time, when I am in a nostalgic mood, bring out the 4x5 and expose a few sheets of film. The smells of the darkroom are an old friend.

My love of the craft goes beyond the capture of imagery. I have been an instructor of photography for over 10 years. Hundreds of students have been either inspired or bored to tears by my rambling lectures on composition, lighting and exposure. I read, I study, I view thousands of images and I will never grow weary of the art of photography.

My program is going to focus on the use of photoshop to create panoramic images. Along the way we will visit layering, layer masks, work flow and my favorite; contract control. I will take the process of creating a panoramic image from the proper capture of the images, processing in RAW converter, through stitching the images together in Photoshop and final creative processing.

Location Change for May 27 Meeting

Reminder! The May 27th competition will be held at:

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church
786 Hughes Rd.
Madison, AL

"If you have a favorite photographic technique or process you would like to share . . . contact Bob Gower to get on the mini-class schedule."

From The President

Well, the weather is FINALLY getting better. May brings many local festivals and opportunities for taking photographs, and the amount of rain we've had this winter should make for great waterfalls; so, hit the road and challenge your imagination. June's Name That Tune program is also not that far away, so start thinking about how you will take a photograph that will let us guess the song it represents.

Our program presenter last month was long-time HPS member, and past President, Andrea Shetley. Andrea's program was "What's in the Bag," and dealt with how to pack for a photographic trip, as well as some great tips for travelling with a camera. What a great program! A couple of my favorites were to go to the TSA and airline websites before you leave on your trip, and print out their rules on photographers, so that you know your rights ahead of time and can show an agent if you are questioned; also, create a business card, so if you're asked if you are a professional photographer, you can show it and maybe get in places you might not otherwise.

Patrick Oden was our judge for "Open" in March, and he had his work cut out for him – the variety of subjects can be overwhelming with "Open." Patrick provided extremely valuable comments, both in general, and specifically to many images. Though young, he is an old-school photographer, in that he wants you to get the image right in the camera first, and not rely heavily on post-processing. I especially liked his comments on having an intent to your image before you push the button; and, always remember that you are the tour guide to the viewer for your photo – guide them to your subject through your composition. Congratulations to our winners and check them out in the newsletter and on our Smug Mug site.

Cliff Whitmore presented a mini-class on Triptychs and Panoramas last month, and it was very well received. Check our HPS website for the pdf file of his presentation. If, like Cliff, you have a favorite photographic technique or process you would like to share with our members, contact Bob Gower to get on the mini-class schedule.

Our May competition topic is "Negative Space," so join me in figuring out how to make the subject of the photo not be the subject of the photo. If you can figure that out, then you have a good chance of placing.

As our photos came down from the Huntsville Museum of Art exhibition, Peter Baldaia told us that we will be able to exhibit in 2014, so stay tuned for more details. If you haven't picked up your photo yet, please contact Rick Kress.

Speaking of exhibiting photos, the Arts Council allows 2 exhibitors each month to show their work in the lobby of the Von Braun Center. Contact Charles Gattis at charlesgattis@comcast.net, for details, if you are interested in this.

Also, don't forget the Rick Sammon presentation on Saturday, May 11th at 1:00PM at UAH's Chan Auditorium. It's free, but we ask you to register on our website, so we know how many people to expect. Many kudos to Joy Henderson for making this happen!!

stolencamerafinder is an open source project that can locate a missing camera by searching for photos on the web that have been taken by that camera. Every photo you take with your digital camera contains hidden information about both the image and the camera such as the make, model and date. This information, called exif data, can also include a unique serial number which identifies your camera. stolencamerafinder crawls the internet searching for photos, collecting the serial numbers of the cameras that took them. When you use the drag & drop feature, stolencamerafinder reads the unique serial number from the exif data of your photo and uses it to match against serial numbers it has stored.

by Geri Reddy

Red -Tailed Hawk

“The planned tours included sunrise, sunset . . . scouting eagle nests . . . and photographing rehabilitated birds.”

Reelfoot Lake State Park is located in the northwest corner of Tennessee in the city of Tiptonville. It contains 280 acres broken into 10 segments along 22 miles of Reelfoot Lake shoreline. It is Tennessee’s largest natural lake, created by severe earthquakes during the winter of 1811 and 1812. It is one of the greatest hunting and fishing preserves in the nation, attracting fishermen, photographers, botanists and wildlife experts due to its wildlife diversity including a variety of shore and wading birds, as well as golden and bald eagles. Cypress trees dominate the margins of the lake and in the summer the lake is filled with lotus plants. The park offers guided canoe tours of the lake in April and May and pontoon boat rides in the summer depending on water levels.

My husband and I attended a photography tour in March sponsored by the Camera Club Council of Tennessee. The event was hosted by the West Tennessee Photographer’s Guild and there were approximately 60 attendees from various camera clubs, including Memphis, Dyersburg, Cookeville, and Jackson Camera Clubs. The weekend started with a dinner Friday evening to meet other attendees and schedule smaller tour groups for various locations. The planned tours included sunrise and sunset at several locations around the lake, guided bus tours for scouting eagle nests, and photographing rehabilitated birds in natural settings. The weather didn’t cooperate for sunrise or sunset, so Saturday morning we concentrated on cypress tree knees, slowing shutter speeds for various water effects along the boardwalk and in other areas of the marsh. We then joined a Ranger on the tour bus for a guided tour of the Mississippi levee, and located several nests. After returning from lunch, the Rangers and assistants provided a special opportunity to photograph captive raptors (eastern screech owl, great horned owl, red tailed hawk, and bald eagle) as they placed them in nearby trees. We visited two duck blinds on Sunday morning, which are also handicapped accessible. Due to rain and high winds on Sunday, David Haggard, a Regional State Parks Interpretive Specialist (and himself, an accomplished photographer) gave a naturalist program covering the State of Tennessee as well as the many photographic opportunities at Reelfoot during each season of the year. The weekend ended with lunch on Sunday afternoon.

American Bald Eagle

After our return I immediately planned on a return trip this summer to photograph the lotus, frogs, and hopefully a sunrise or sunset. The opportunity for boat rides definitely sounds interesting. If you are interested in a future HPS field trip, please see my article on p. 7. There are limited accommodations so reservations will need to be made early and I need to have an idea of the number people who are interested.

Upcoming HPS Field Trips

- 1) June 2013– Date TBD. Bluewater Creek Polo Club near Florence, AL, www.bluewatercreekpolo.com, to photograph the matches. The Club was founded in 1980 by Edward S. Robbins, III, a businessman, and entrepreneur with businesses located in Muscle Shoals, Alabama. Located just minutes east of Florence, Alabama, the club is situated on over 200 acres of manicured fields surrounded by flexible Centaur fence. Paddocks, regulation 1.5 mile racetrack, polo practice arena and two world-class regulation polo fields complete the facility. There are 2 day Tournaments held each weekend in June. Trip leader: Geri Reddy
- 2) July 19-21, 2013. Weekend trip to Reelfoot Lake State Park, TN. Possible photography subjects include sunrise/sunset, blooming Lotus plants, frogs, osprey, swamps and cypress trees. Pontoon boat rides are offered on weekends for the public, however, we could have our own group reservation for photographers (minimum # required) if water levels permit. Please email Geri Reddy at hpseditor@bellsouth.net if you are interested in this trip. She will send specific info regarding lodging and pricing to those who are interested. If there is not enough interest from HPS members by the end of May, offer will be extended to TN camera clubs. Being interested does not commit you.
